Sage's Scouts Out of a Job. A class of persons who have suffered A class of persons who have suffered greatly by reason of the bomb throwing tragedy have hitherto escaped the notice of the press. Mr. Sage was doing a large business in options or puts and calls, spreads and straddles. He was not so greatly absorbed in this specialty as he was in 1883. He was caught in than he was before. Still, this business has amounted to a good many thousand dollars some days and has afforded a ting a living.

These men are typical Wall street creatures. You see them hustling here and there, buttonholing men and whis-pering in their ears. They are tireless. They know everybody who is likely to take a little flier. Sometimes as many take a little flier. Sometimes as many as a score or more of them used to go to Russell Sage every day and ask him what he would charge for options on various stocks and securities. Having got Sage's terms, they scoured the streets, professing to give tips, and in the course of a week would bring in many customers to Sage. Their usual commission was one eighth of 1 per cent., and the smartest of them could make from ten to twenty dollars a day.

They brought Sage a great deal of business first and last. But these men have been sad eyed enough since the explosion. This part of Sage's business life is ended as much as though he had been killed on that day, and it is a serious question whether he will ever resume it. This has thrown these scouts and commission agents upon their up-pers. — New York Cor, Philadelphia Press.
